This Notice answers some questions about our Customer Identification Program.

Payments on Securities Purchases

Tradition Securities and Derivatives LLC. does not accept cash or cash equivalents. Checks should be made payable to PERSHING LLC. ("Pershing") The firm may not accept checks made out to any other entity.

Payment for Order Flow Practices

TSD sends certain equity orders to exchanges, Electronic Communications Networks, or broker-dealers during normal business hours and during extended trading sessions. Some of these venues may provide payments to TSD depending on the characteristics of the order and subsequent execution. The details of these payments are available upon written request.

TSD provides a quarterly report of the venues to which orders are routed (SEA Rule 606) which is available to you at no charge on the firm's web site (www.Traditionsd.com) or by written request to the Compliance Department.

Notwithstanding the above paragraph regarding the payment for order flow, TSD is committed to providing you with the best execution of your orders. To accomplish this TSD selects certain market makers which agree to accept orders to provide the execution of OTC securities transactions, up to a specified size and to execute them at or better than the national best bid or offer (NBBO).

TSD regularly reviews reports for quality of execution purposes.

FINRA Rule 5320 Disclosure – Concurrent Firm and Customer Trading

Rule 5320 generally provides that a broker-dealer that accepts and holds an order in an equity security from its own customer or customer of another broker-dealer is prohibited from trading that security on the same side of the market for its own account at a price that would satisfy the customer order, unless it immediately thereafter executes the customer order up to the size and at the same or better price at which it traded for its own account. With respect to orders for institutional accounts, or for orders of 10,000 shares or more that are greater than $100,000 in value, a broker-dealer is permitted to trade a security on the same side of the market for its own account at a price that would satisfy such customer order, provided that the broker-dealer has provided clear and comprehensive written disclosure to such customer at account opening and annually thereafter that:

- (a) discloses that it may trade proprietarily at prices that would satisfy the customer order, and
- (b) provides the customer with a meaningful opportunity to opt in to the Rule 5320 protections with respect to all or any portion of the customer's order.

Pursuant to Rule 5320 as described above, you may choose to withhold your consent and disallow Tradition from trading alongside your customer orders. If you choose to withhold your consent, you must notify Tradition by calling 1-(800) 221-3263 and asking for "Compliance Opt-Out" extension 3497, however we may obtain your consent on an order-by-order basis. If you choose not to opt in at this time, you may still choose to withhold your consent by notifying Tradition on an order-by-order basis.

Extended Hours Trading Risk Disclosure

Risk of Lower liquidity. Liquidity refers to the ability of market participants to buy and sell securities. Generally, the more orders that are available in a market, the greater the liquidity. Liquidity is important because with greater liquidity it is easier for investors to buy and sell securities, and as a result, investors are more likely to pay or receive a competitive price for securities purchased or sold. There may be lower liquidity in extended hours trading as compared to regular market hours. As a result, your order may only be partially executed, or not at all.

Risk of Higher Volatility. Volatility refers to changes in price that securities undergo when trading. Generally, the higher the volatility of a security, the greater the price swings. There may be greater volatility in extended hours trading than in regular markets. As a result, your order may only be partially executed, or not at all, or you may receive an inferior price in extended hours trading than you would during regular market hours.

Risk of Changing Prices. The prices of securities traded in extended hours trading may not reflect the prices either at the end of regular market hours, or upon the opening the next morning. As a result, you may receive an inferior price in extended hours trading than you would during regular market hours.

Risk of Unlinked markets. Depending on the extended hours trading system or the time of day, the prices displayed on a particular extended hours trading system may not reflect the prices in other concurrently operating extended hours trading systems dealing in the same securities. Accordingly, you may receive an inferior price in one extended hours trading system than you would in another extended hours trading system.

Risk of News Announcements. Normally, issuers make news announcements that may affect the price of their securities after regular market hours. Similarly, important financial information is frequently announced outside of regular market hours. In extended hours trading, these announcements may occur during trading, and if combined with lower liquidity and higher volatility, may cause an exaggerated and unsustainable effect on the price of a security.

Risk of Wider Spreads. The spread refers to the difference in price between what you can buy a security for and what you can sell it for. Lower liquidity and higher volatility in extended hours trading may result in wider than normal spreads for a particular security.

ISE Solicited Order Mechanism Notification

When handling an order of 500 contracts or more on your behalf, Tradition Securities & Derivatives, Inc. may solicit other parties to execute against your order and may thereafter execute your order using the International Securities Exchange's Solicited Order Mechanism. This functionality provides a single-price execution only, so that your entire order may receive a better price after being exposed to the Exchange's participants, but will not receive partial price improvement. For further details on the operation of this Mechanism, please refer to International Securities Exchange Rule 716, which is available at www.ise.com under "Membership, Rules & Fees – Regulatory – ISE Rules."

Business Continuity Plan Disclosure Required by FINRA Rule 4370

TSD has developed a Business Continuity Plan that describes how we will respond to events that significantly disrupt our business. Since the timing and impact of disasters and disruptions is unpredictable, we will have to be flexible in responding to actual events as they occur.

If after a significant business disruption, you cannot contact us as you usually do at (212) 791-4500, you should call our alternative number – (212) 943-8700. Or, you can go to our web site at <http://www.traditionamericas.com> for information. If you still cannot access us through either of those means due to a significant business interruption, information may be obtained from Pershing LLC at the Business Continuity and Other Disclosures link at the bottom of the home page at the Pershing web site at www.pershing.com or call (201) 413-3635 for recorded instructions. If you cannot access the instructions from the web-site or previously noted telephone number, Pershing may be contacted at (213) 624-6100, extension 500, as an alternative telephone number from recorded instructions.

We plan to quickly recover and resume business operations after a significant business disruption and respond by safeguarding our employees and property, making a financial and operational assessment, protecting the firm's books and records, and allowing our customers to transact business. In short, our Business Continuity

Plan is designed to permit our firm to resume operations as quickly as possible, given the scope and severity of the significant business disruption.

Our Business Continuity Plan addresses the following: data backup and recovery; all mission critical systems; financial and operational assessments; alternate communications with customers, employees, and regulators; alternative physical location of employees; critical supplier, contractor, bank and counter-party impact; regulatory reporting; and assuring our customers prompt access to their funds and securities if we are unable to continue our business.

Our clearing firm, Pershing LLC, backs up our important records in a geographically separate area. While every emergency situation poses unique problems based on external factors, such as time of day and the severity of the disruption, we have been advised by our clearing firm that its objective is to restore its own operations and be able to complete existing transactions and payments within as short a timeframe as possible. Your orders and requests for funds and securities could be delayed during this period.

Significant business disruptions can vary in their scope, such as involving only our firm, a single building housing our firm, the business district where our firm is located, the city where we are located, or the whole region. Within each of these areas, the severity of the disruption can also vary from minimal to severe. In a disruption to only our firm or a building housing our firm, we will transfer our operations to a local site when needed, and expect to recover and resume business as soon as possible. In a disruption affecting our business district, city or region, we will transfer our operations to a site outside of the affected area, and will recover and resume business when that facility and communication links are available. If the significant business disruption is so severe that it prevents us from remaining in business, we will assure our customers prompt access to their funds and securities through our clearing agent.
